1.3.1 Curriculum Integration

Although, some of the issues have not been mentioned in the curriculum / syllabus, MAM's Sumatibhai Shah Ayurveda Mahavidyalaya is keen to enrich the experience of students while learning at under graduate and post graduate levels.

Gender Equality and its associated consequences is the key issue which is highly debated since many years. The institute makes the students aware by organizing the guest lecturers of experts from the relevant fields.

Environment and its preservation is the sector where institute is working diligently. There is arrangement to recycle the waste water to nourish the plants in Ayurveda botanical garden. The activities include arrangement of the lectures on composting of the bio waste; consequently the teachers are now doing home garbage composting successfully.

There is provision to collect plastic and other wastes in the container specifically kept for this purpose.

Biomedical waste like dissected body parts is disposed off on the guidelines given by the authorities (Pune Municipal Corporation) by following a stipulated procedure.

Human values are also taught in the daily routine of the institute which are not only taught during the academic curricula. Ancient culture along with the civic senses is taught continuously by organizing the lectures of the authorities in this field. "Behavior on the social media" is the foremost important issue in present civilization. Students are made aware by the lectures of the IT cell experts.

Demographic issues are addressed through the activity of National Service Scheme. The camps conducted by NSS include surveying the villages / population in a specific direction to get the data so as to infer and rectify the social issues.

Professional ethics is the most important issue, as there are growing incidences of negative approach towards the medical profession in recent times. Orientation programe is organized for each and every batch of interns about this aspect before commencement of their internship at city and village level. Students of UG and PG courses are made aware by conducting webinar organized by MUHS. Various ways to counsel the patients and the relatives are taught to them. The internship orientation program focuses on communication skills and other medicolegal aspects along with other technical topics.

Swasthavritta department organizes the camps and orientation lectures for the social benefit to the elderly citizens. They are also made aware of the laws and educate them to
